"JAP" FORCES IN MILNE BAY AREA OF NEW GUINEA ARE "BOTLED UP AND ALLIES ARE HOLDING THE CORK," LONDON REPORTS

Remnants of Enemy Expeditionary Forces Pinned on Narrow Tongue of Land—U. S. Bombers Successfully Attack Axis Landing Grounds in Egypt

(By International News Service)

London, Aug. 31—Japanese forces remaining in the Milne Bay area of New Guinea "are bottled up and the Allies are holding the cork," the London Evening Star reported in a special Sydney dispatch today.

Remnants of the enemy expeditionary force are pinned on the narrow tongue of land north of Milne Bay, and to save them Japanese warships must carry out an evacuation comparable in difficulty to the British withdrawals from Greece and Crete.

The Japanese have a choice of cutting their losses or throwing in big forces under risky conditions in an attempt to relieve them, the dispatch said.

CAIRO, Aug. 31—Heavy and medium bombers of the United States Army Air Corps successfully attacked Axis landing grounds east of Mersa Matruh, Egypt, and dock facilities in the Libyan port of Tobruk, it was announced today.

Several fires were started on the Matruh landing grounds and one large explosion followed the attack.

Large fires were started in the dock area at Tobruk.

All the American bombers returned to their base safely following the attack which was carried out Saturday night.

British destroyers meanwhile were pumping a hail of shells into Axis tank repair workshops, stores and dumps at El Daba. The British naval bombardment was conducted in defiance of continuous dive-bombing attacks by Axis planes.

Promise More Alien Raids in County Area

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31—The extensive FBI raids Saturday on 135 homes of enemy aliens in Bucks and Montgomery counties were but a prelude to more and bigger raids, U. S. Attorney Gerald A. Gleason indicated yesterday.

When and where they will be made were closely guarded secrets.

Gleason intimated the tempo of alien roundups is to be accelerated, basing his opinion on the increasing number of requests from the FBI for executive search warrants and Presidential warrants. The latter are used in making arrests.

It is understood 40 Presidential warrants are to be asked by the FBI as a result of the raids Saturday in Norristown, Conshohocken, Bridgeport, Upper Merion and Plymouth townships and Doylestown.

Among those to be arrested are five German officer veterans of the first World War, it was said.

The raid—most extensive to date—resulted in seizure of the greatest quantity of contraband in this area since the start of the war.

Included were 50 shotguns, rifles, revolvers and 5,000 rounds of ammunition.

SERVICE VEHICLE AFIRE

Bristol Consolidated firemen were called this morning at about two o'clock to extinguish a fire in the service vehicle of Galzerano, undertaker. The vehicle was on Cherry street at the time that the fire in the vehicle was discovered.

GIRL FOR KATZMARS

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Katzmar, Cornwells Manor, on Saturday evening in Harriman Hospital.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

By International News Service

The Axis was handed a few pointers today on military campaigning in widely separated theaters of war.

The Japs were given a new drubbing in the Southwest Pacific while the Soviets appeared to be turning the tables rapidly on Adolf Hitler.

In China the battlefronts on land and in the air also were extremely active and here too the enemy received the worst of it.

Hard on the heels of their resounding defeats in the Solomon Islands came a new blow to Japan today in the Milne Bay area of New Guinea. The Nips ran right smack into a trap when they effected their new landing on the southeastern tip of New Guinea in a fourth attempt to strike at the Allied advanced base at Port Moresby.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced from his headquarters in Australia the Japanese at Milne Bay had been routed and driven back into the sea.

Whereas the Japs had expected to surprise the Allies through their landing from an armada of warships they in turn were surprised and virtually annihilated.

Gen. MacArthur put it this way: "Australian combat troops, ably commanded by Major General Clowes and brilliantly supported by Australian and United States air units, have thrown back the enemy into the narrow confines of the peninsula north of Milne Bay where he is being rapidly reduced."

The General explained that some of the remnants of the Japs who landed at Milne Bay had been saved from destruction when they were evacuated by their naval craft under cover of darkness. The eight destroyers and one cruiser which hovered off Milne Bay have disappeared and the Australian and American units now are mopping up what remains of the Japs.

Fighting on all fronts in Russia favored the Soviets. Repeated German thrusts against the important industrial city of Stalingrad were smashed back and the defenders themselves launched counter-attacks which cost the Nazis heavily.

In the mid-Caucasus the German drive toward the rich Grozny oil fields was brought to a halt 80 miles north-west of Grozny. Here, in the Prokladnaya area, the Russians even broke German resistance, the High Command announced.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Double Compensation

Washington, Aug. 29. THE other day the President directed his departmental aides not to air their differences in public. There are two ways of looking at this. One is that it is a very salutary order which, if observed, will improve public morale and stop giving our enemies the impression of internal disorder and dissension. The other is that this is a White House device for covering up blunders, concealing incompetency and shutting off news to which the people are entitled and which would force a greater efficiency in war management.

THERE is soundness in both views, but if one takes only the first, which is the Administration view, still this Presidential "directive" (which is the favorite Washington word at the moment) will not really cure the ills at which it is aimed. It may choke off some of the open quarrels and it may block certain channels of newspaper information, but it will not quench the jealousies and bitterness which seethe underneath and which, one way or another, are bound to become known.

NOR WILL IT allay the feeling of discrimination and unfairness which afflicts so many good men who have come here since the war began and who are doing really useful work. One of the causes for this feeling is the difference in treatment of men, all of whom should be treated alike, in the matter of compensation. For example, there are a lot of officials here who are making very great financial sacrifices to serve their country. They have relinquished large salaries in private business. They are living here at considerable expense and working either for the traditional dollar a year or for a small fraction of what they had been paid.

Mrs. Rachel Kirk Gillam, a native of Langhorne and member of an old Bucks county family, died Saturday at the home of a son, Clifford Riggs Gillam, at Buck Hill Falls, Pa. She was 78.

Mrs. Gillam, a widow, was the daughter of Hannah Atkinson and Stephen L. Kirk, members of old Quaker families. She lived in Langhorne nearly all her life.

In addition to her son, Clifford, who is manager of the Buck Hill Falls Co., Mrs. Gillam is survived by another son, William Henry Gillam, Jr., of St. Davids, assistant general manager of the Board of City Trusts.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Langhorne Presbyterian Church. Burial will be private in the Middletown Friends' Burial Ground under direction of R. L. Horner.

CONTACT SQUAD IS TO MEET PLANE "SPOTTERS"

Lt. Wm. H. Ashton, of Signal Corps, and Aides, to Hold 3 Meetings in County

DOYLESTOWN, SEPT. 1ST

The aircraft "spotters" of the lower area of Bucks County are to soon meet with a contact squad of the Aircraft Warning Service.

The contact squad plans also to meet for the first time representatives of the "spotters" from the central and upper part of the county.

The meeting of mid-area "spotters" and contact squad is scheduled to occur at the court house in Doylestown tomorrow evening at eight o'clock.

The squad, in charge of Lieutenant William H. Ashton, of the Signal Corps, will visit Bucks County during the week of August 31st, and will hold three meetings. The squad, composed of officers of the First Fighter Command, will show motion pictures of the warning service in England and also of places in this country, and full details of the work of the service will be given by the speakers. An open forum will be held at the conclusion of the program so that any one in the audience may have an opportunity to question the speakers.

It has been pointed out that while it is very important for all "spotters" to attend their meetings, those from other sections are invited to be present. The meetings will be open to the public and the "spotters" have been urged to take friends with them.

Engagement of Miss Henrich To Mr. deWitt Announced

At a picnic luncheon held on the lawn of their home on Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Henrich announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to Mr. Wallace deWitt.

Miss Henrich attended Marion College last year, but will not return this fall. Mr. deWitt is a graduate chemical engineer from Leland Stanford University, and took post-graduate work at Harvard. He is at present employed by Rohm & Haas Co.

Thirty close friends of the family and young people were present.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

FT. KNOX, Ky., Aug. 31—(Spl.)—The Armored Force School, where the tens of thousands of technicians for the Army's hard-hitting armored divisions are trained, today had rolled another class of tank mechanics off its fast-rolling human assembly line.

Among the graduates, announced from the offices of Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Chief of the Armored Force, were: Pvt. Howard E. Mitchell, 8th Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky., of Tullytown, Pa.

To earn their diplomas, the men studied the motor and driving mechanisms of various tanks, tearing them down piece by piece to learn how to "keep 'em rolling" afield. During their course, they worked with the same tools issued to field crews and were asked to imagine that the shiny concrete floors of their bustling shops were sand, to form the habit of keeping their equipment in boxes.

The Armored Force School, of which the tank department is only one of nearly a dozen sections, is headed by Brigadier General Stephen G. Henry, Commandant. Now one of the largest technical schools in the world, several times more students than the number graduated from any civilian university or college pour out of its shops and classrooms each year.

The tank department is headed by Lt. Col. Frederick M. Thompson, as director.

THELMA E. GOEHN IS BRIDE OF A SOLDIER

Becomes Wife of Private W. S. Perkins on Saturday Afternoon

TAKE TRIP TO NEW YORK

With her father giving her in marriage, Miss Thelma Elizabeth Goheen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goheen, 232 Roosevelt street, was wed on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock to Private Winfield Scott Perkins, of Mitchell Field, L. I., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Perkins, Mulberry street.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. George E. Boswell. Miss Goheen entered St. James' Episcopal Church to the strains of a bridal march played by organist, Mrs. Minerva Epstein. The vocalist for the ceremony was Mrs. Ralph Hart, Bristol Township, who sang "Because" and "Oh Promise Me."

The attendants of the couple were Miss Mildred Goheen, sister of the bride; and Private Peter Olsavsky, of Mitchell Field, L. I.

The bride was costumed in white and her sister wore pink for the occasion. The bridal gown was satin, it buttoning down the back. A ruffle of lace appeared about the yoke, and two ruffles of lace enhanced the skirt just below the waist-line. The gown featured Continued on Page Four

Three Parochial Schools Are To Open Tomorrow

St. Mark's and St. Ann's parochial school, here, and St. Thomas Aquinas parochial school in Crofton, will open tomorrow for the fall and winter term.

Full sessions will be observed by all, with no faculty changes noted. The same members of the Sisterhood, who taught last year will conduct classes.

At St. Ann's and St. Mark's there will be conducted as usual the eight elementary grades, and two commercial classes. At St. Thomas there will be grades one to eight. Sisters from St. Mark's parish are in charge of St. Thomas classes.

BURNING RAGS FILL HOUSE WITH SMOKE

Saturday afternoon Bristol Consolidated firemen were called when a resident of Lincoln avenue attempted to build a fire in a kitchen stove. A woman put rags on the blaze and this caused the house to be filled with smoke.

CROYDON WOMAN HELD UP IN PHILA. BY FORMER NEIGHBOR

Mrs. Richard Hein Relates Experience of Being Held Up at Point of Gun

GAVE UP 99 CENTS

Police in Red Car Prevent Further Robbery and Arrest Highwayman

Held-up at the point of a .32 calibre revolver early Saturday morning as she was returning from the home of her sister-in-law, in Philadelphia, to her Croydon residence, Mrs. Richard Hein, 24, discovered that the man who attempted to take money from her and a companion had been her neighbor when she resided in Bristol some years ago.

The one taken in custody by police is Robert E. Heiss, 23, of Harrison street, Frankford, a former Bristol resident.

Mrs. Hein, Christie avenue, Croydon, had in company with her mother-in-law, attended a party at the home of the former's sister-in-law in Philadelphia, Friday evening. The elder Mrs. Hein decided to remain there for the night. When Mrs. Hein left to return to Croydon, William Carroll, of E. Cambria street, rode with her, planning to take an "L" train at a station a few blocks away.

Mrs. Hein states that as she stopped her car to leave Carroll out, a young man, his face covered with a handkerchief, and brandishing a revolver, stepped forward and ordered Carroll back into the car. Carroll returned to the front seat, and the hold-up man, who later proved to be Heiss got into the rear seat. He forced Mrs. Hein to drive for a while, evidently looking for a likely spot to leave the car. According to Mrs. Hein, Heiss asked for any money the two had. Mrs. Hein tossed her change purse, containing 99 cents, to the rear seat, but did not hand over her pocketbook in which was $25. Carroll was just ready to turn his money over after the machine had been brought to a stop near an "L" station, when a police car pulled alongside.

One Man's Opinion By Walter Kiernan (I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Farm food prices up 32 points in a year. Up 163 percent over pre-World War prices.

Nice going, fellows. That's the way to do it. Keep the food prices going up and keep the taxes going up. That's the stuff.

Hang on everybody—this is war! Yippee! What a ride!

A nice steak? Yes, madam—please step into the vault. Would you like to arrange credit? Perhaps six easy payments?

You thought there was plenty of food? What's that got to do with it? Don't you know prices always go up during a war? Why? Well, now look, madam... I'm just a little guy. I don't know anything about these things... ask your neighborhood professor.

How about a nice chicken—they're only up 11 points since July 15. Why? I suppose they read the war news too.

Thought for the day: Cotton is down four points. Try it with salt and pepper.

WAR'S SOCIAL EFFECT

For a short time the nation can expect to continue experiencing a phenomenal boom in the marriage rate and a corresponding increase in the birth rate, both of which factors received their impetus from improved economic conditions resulting from war expenditures and the introduction and passage of the Selective Service Act.

But this trend will not continue, according to a recent speech by Dr. Philip M. Hauser, assistant director of the census, given before the 21st annual institute of the Society for Social Research.

Full participation in a hard war, it was noted, probably will drop the marriage rate to a new low, and also the birth rate. And demobilization can be expected to result in a sharp increase in the marriage rate and birth rate, based on the experience of the last war. Temporarily there may even be an increase in the rate of natural population growth. But these increases can not be expected to be of long duration since there is no reason to expect a reversal of the long-time downward trend in fertility.

On the contrary, the war, in the long run, will probably accelerate the downward trend of the birth rate because of military mortality and disability, the emergence of "hollow classes" in the age pyramid of the nation, the imbalance of the sexes at marriageable age, the effects of war on human motivation in the rearing of offspring—inspired by uncertainty of the future—and extension of contraceptive knowledge. And the problem becomes more serious when it is known that the loss of 500,000 American males in the war would, for the first time in American history, create an excess of females.

Since American economy has been built on anticipation of population increase, any decrease in the rate of population growth can have serious economic consequences. The settlement of this war will call for greater recognition of the nation's population problems.

NAVY BINOCULARS

The Navy Department has issued an urgent appeal to the American people for binoculars. It wishes to borrow them for the naval forces. Numerous responses have already been made to the call, but more are needed. All types of instruments can not be accepted because of the difficulty of obtaining replacement parts for some.

Only Zeiss or Bausch and Lomb instruments, size 6x30 and 7x50 are being accepted at present. Persons having binoculars that meet the requirements have been asked to pack them carefully and ship them to the Naval Observatory, Washington, D. C. Each should be identified with the name and address of the sender. They will be returned, if possible, after the war.

The Navy Department has been compelled to reject proffers of lorgnettes and opera glasses, which, of course, do not measure up to the binocular specifications. The call offers another opportunity to give direct aid to fighting men. It should bring a prompt and generous response.

Something else difficult to understand is one Federal officer saying that during war living standards must decline, while another demands that no matter what happens, America's high standard of living must be maintained.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Nov. 4, 1880. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The barn on the Daniels property, on Radcliffe street, caught fire on Sunday about midnight, and was entirely consumed. A lot of waste wool was stored in the building, and it is supposed the fire originated by the spontaneous combustion of the wool. The loss was not great, as neither the barn nor its contents were very valuable. The fire bell sounded the alarm, but the signals to be observed in case of fire were difficult to interpret.

On Saturday morning a dispatch was received at Bristol announcing the death of Frank Hughes, a young man who had always made his home here, and who was brakeman on a freight train. When near Deans station, N. J., he was walking from the platform of one car to another, when a coupling broke and he was thrown off under the train. He lived only a short time after. His funeral took place on Monday morning from the Episcopal Chapel in Bristol. He was buried in St. James' burying-ground.

The formal installation of Rev. Levi Beck as pastor of the Baptist Church occurred on Thursday evening. Rev. Dr. P. S. Hendon preached the sermon, and a quartet choir from Philadelphia furnished the music. Although the weather was inclement and other meetings occurred which distracted attention from this, a large audience was present and the exercises were of unusual interest.

Election day in Bristol passed off very quietly, except in the third ward. The interest in the result was very great, and both sides made every effort to get out their full vote. There was little challenging, except in the third ward, and there it was quite lively. The vote was the largest ever polled in Bristol.

(Following items from issue of Nov. 11, 1880.)
The third extension of the buildings of the worsted mills of Grundy Brothers and Campion has been begun. The new building will join the main one and run back to the canal. It will be about 85 feet in length and 59 feet in width. The machinery for this extension is now arriving, and when placed in position the capacity of the mill will be materially augmented.

Samuel Appleton's mill was broken into on Monday night and a lot of stockings stolen. It was supposed that the goods were stored in a boat which went up the canal early on Tuesday morning. Constable Saxton started after the boat, armed with a search warrant and overhauled it a short distance above Bristol, but found no trace of the missing property.

The new school house in the third ward is being pushed along rapidly and if the weather proves favorable there is some probability that it will be finished about the first of the year.

The Bristol Institute met on Tuesday evening with a fair attendance. In the absence of the president, Henry G. Booz occupied the chair. The exercises were varied and of much interest. The program was as follows: Piano solo, by Mr. Miller, of Trenton; reading, from Hamlet, by Mrs. Dr. Heston; piano solo, by Miss Alice Thomas; reading, by Miss Miriam Cone; "Portfolio," part first, read by Miss Lizzie Lang; piano solo, by Miss Alice Sulzer; "Portfolio," part second, read by Miss Carrie Packer; and a piano solo by Mr. Miller. Miss Sulzer was encored, and gave a second selection. Mr. Miller was also encored.

ON THE OTHER hand, there are men here who have not given up anything at all in the way of private income. On the contrary, the Government salary which they now get is merely in addition to income from their law offices or banks or businesses. In brief, there is no rule which applies to everyone. The Government permits some to supplement their private income with a Government salary, but insists that others shall sever all outside profitable connections. Some corporations whose executives have come here have given them indefinite leave of absence with full pay, others have accepted their resignations with no pay.

THERE IS, of course, a law on the subject. The trouble is that it is being applied in some cases and ignored in others, which makes a pretty bad situation. A statute enacted in 1917 is still in force. It reads as follows:

No Government official or employee shall receive any salary in connection with his services as such an official or employee, from any source other than the Government of the United States, except as may be contributed out of the treasury of any State, county or municipality, and no person, association or corporation shall make any contribution to, or in any way supplement, the salary of any Government official or employee for the services performed by him for the Government of the United States. Any person violating any of the terms of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $1,000 or imprisonment for not less than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment as the court may determine.

THE WORDING of the act seems perfectly clear. It seems to mean that no corporation can legally pay any money in the form of salary to any employee while he is receiving pay, even of a dollar a year, from the Government. To ignore this act in some cases and insist upon it in others is, of course, indefensible. Yet there appears no question but that it is being ignored in some cases and being observed in others.

Take the case of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox. It has been widely printed — and certainly widely talked about in Washington and elsewhere — that Mr. Knox, in addition to his $15,000-a-year Government salary, is also receiving $60,000 a year from the Chicago Daily News, of which he was publisher. Though there has been no denial of this allegation, perhaps it is not true.

PERHAPS IT DOES Mr. Knox an injustice. Or, perhaps, he has received a personal interpretation of the law from the Attorney General which would sanction this double compensation. If Mr. Biddle has given such an opinion then it ought to be known so that it could be applied to all alike. If he has given such an opinion, or if Mr. Knox is not receiving two salaries in violation of the law, then Mr. Knox owes it to himself to deny the allegations and stop the talk, which is good neither for the morale of the law organization or the morale of the public.

IN ANY EVENT, the President would do well if he would follow his "stop quarreling in public" directive with another directive recognizing this law and applying it without any exceptions. Either everybody here ought to be allowed to supplement his Government salary with compensation from his private businesses, if any, or none should. Either the law ought to be observed or it ought to be repealed. Certainly, there is no excuse for pushing it aside with sleazy evasions in one case and rigidly enforcing it in others.

HULMEVILLE

Word has been received by George Douglass that his brother, Howard M. Douglass, died suddenly at his home in Ambler last evening. The deceased resided in Hulmeville a number of years ago. He is also survived by two daughters and three sons.

Miss William Gross, Hulmeville, Miss Eva Burkhard, Newportville, and Mrs. Elmer Schneider, Morrisville, left Friday for Boston, Mass., where they will spend several days. They will also visit Mrs. Gross' son, Richard Gross, who is in training with the U. S. Navy.

wife of Mr. George B. White, Lafayette street, Bristol.

Michael Kish, Morrisville, gave his niece in marriage. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Jadlocki, Falls Township; and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry White, Bristol.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Samuel Gaskell, pastor of the church; and organ music was provided by Mrs. William Lovett. Mrs. Lovett was also accompanist for the vocalist, Mrs. Ralph Hart, Bristol Township, whose selections were: "I Love You Truly," "Oh Promise Me," and "Smilin' Through."

The bridal party included Miss Margaret Stephenson, Bristol, as maid of honor; the Misses Ethel Jadlocki, Falls Township, Dorothy Rose, Morrisville, Marie Lawless, Philadelphia, and Community House, Mr. White and wife, Marie Lawless, Philadelphia, as bridesmaids; and Betty Jadlocki, Falls Township, as flower girl.

Serving as groomsman was Mr. William Chambers, Bristol; and ushers were inclusive of: Messrs. Bradford Randall, Langhorne; Ernest Benz, Philadelphia; and John and Stephen Jadlocki, Jr., Falls Township.

The gown worn by the bride was of white satin. She wore a white veil, and carried an arm bouquet of white roses, gardenias, and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a costume of pink taffeta; the Misses Rose and Lawless wore rose-tinted costumes; and the Misses Ethel Jadlocki and Rose Beres wore attire in raised tone. The little flower girl was garbed in aqua. The attendants wore gardenias in their hair, and carried old-fashioned bouquets of flowers.

The reception following the ceremony was held in Lower Makefield Falls Township, Dorothy Rose, Morrisville, Marie Lawless, Philadelphia, and Community House, Mr. White and wife, Marie Lawless, Philadelphia, as bridesmaids; and Betty Jadlocki, Falls Township, as flower girl.

Pilgrim in MANHATTAN by MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

CHAPTER ONE

WHEN Miss Jepson was out of the office, Chloe Cameron succeeded to her desk and chair. The chair faced the door and all the photographs of those who belonged to Mr. Samuels' Bureau of Entertainers.

Chloe had found the door diverting at first, with all sorts of people coming through, some in a hurry and some not. The photographs had diverted her, too, placed as they were at odd angles, all signed in what appeared to be the same cager, sprawling hand—all except the yopla, whose autograph was retained.

But now, within a month, these things had grown commonplace, and while Miss Jepson was out and no one calling to inquire about artists, Chloe read from her own typewritten book, revising it now and then, or perhaps adding something new. It was odd how often new ideas came to her in New York, as if its overflowing activity had penetrated strange corners of her mind.

The Bureau being newly reorganized, Chloe and Miss Jepson had arrived the same day. Miss Jepson, already engaged, had intended to advertise for a secretary as soon as she had got her bearings, and here was Chloe in her trim tweed suit, you couldn't see the frayed lining—and her moss-green hat that looked as if it might have come off Jacques in As You Like It, its color was so woody and its feather so pert.

A slim, trim girl whose movements were light and free, as if she had been used to plenty of room, a girl who looked at you straight from wide-spaced gold-hazel eyes.

Miss Jepson had employed girls before, and she glanced down at Chloe's shoes. They always told the story, freshly polished these shoes were, but decidedly tired-looking. Hands very nice—strong-looking hands that might have managed tennis rackets or bridle-reins—and the nails were like oval-cut gems. Miss Jepson could not see the frayed lining, but she knew it was there.

"Can you type?" she asked.

"Yes," said Chloe.

"Can you do shorthand?"

Chloe said yes, for she could certainly do shorthand, having studied it in school to use at lectures, but she often had difficulty in transcribing it.

"Take this letter," said Miss Jepson.

And Chloe, saying a little prayer, sat down at the typewriter.

That was how she got the job, by the neatness and despatch of her typing, Miss Jepson making allowances for her nervousness and offering her twenty dollars a week. It might have been twenty-five if she had had New York references.

What Chloe Cameron really had come to the Bureau for was to find a job as entertainer, reading her own stories, that is, singing her own songs.

However, after weary weeks of haunting entertainment agencies in vain, any job was to be desired.

So she said nothing to Miss Jepson about entertaining. She merely set about improving her shorthand.

Miss Jepson dictated the most of the letters, so her approval was of importance. If a stenographer pleased Miss Jepson she came pretty near to being permanent. And who knows, thought Chloe, but some day I may slip into a gap when an artist fails to show up?

Except that she could never show Mr. Samuels. Poor man, he was going slowly deaf. That was why he had brought in Mary Jepson to take over the outer office. That was why he leaned on her there for every audible contact with the world.

Miss Jepson rarely read over Chloe's letters, simply signed them and let them go. It was hardly necessary, therefore, for Chloe to use in these letters Miss Jepson's extraordinary diction, so long as her message remained intact.

Today was Saturday. Mr. Samuels had come in briefly, a quiet, gray-bearded man, with the tired eyes of his calling. He had given Chloe a letter and had gone out again. Chloe herself would be going soon; Miss Jepson had left for the day shortly before noon.

Meanwhile, Chloe was making revisions in her own typewritten book of cowboy chanteys and Indian

Four Army Men Participate
In Nichols-Rauch Wedding

An attractive late summer wedding, solemnized on Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, was that which united Miss Edythe I. Rauch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Rauch, 346 Cleveland street, and Private Gene H. Nichols, Fort Monmouth, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Nichols, Wood street. The three attendants of the groom are also serving in the United States Army.

The ceremony took place on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nichols, Woodside avenue, Edgely, with the Rev. James R. Gailey, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church, officiating. Recorded musical selections were used.

Attending the bride were the following young women: Miss Katherine Anty, Washington, D. C., as maid of honor; Miss Mildred Byrns, the Bronx, N. Y.; Miss Mildred Anty, Philadelphia, as bridesmaids; and Joyce Rauch, sister of the bride, as flower girl.

Private Nichols had as his best man his brother, Sergeant Chester V. Nichols, Fort Monroe, Va.; and the ushers were inclusive of: P. F. C. Wesley Carolin, and Private Robert Lemert, of Fort Monmouth, N. J.

The bride was attractively gowned in white organza, patterned on old-fashioned lines with a short train. From a picture hat of white horsehair there fell a fingertip veil. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white roses, asters and lilies-of-the-valley. Her slippers were of white satin.

Organza was also used in the pastel-toned costumes of the attendants of the bride. Miss Katherine Anty wore blue; Miss Mildred Anty, yellow; Miss Byrns, orchid; and the flower girl was garbed in pink. The attendants wore hair-bows to match their gowns; and slippers were of silver. Each carried an old-fashioned bouquet of vari-colored flowers.

The reception, held in the social room of Bristol Presbyterian Church, was attended by 70 guests, the tables being decked with bouquets in the national colors.

A week's honeymoon trip is being participated in by Private Nichols and bride. The former Miss Rauch is a graduate of Girls High School, Philadelphia; and the groom graduated

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

One of the many factors which stand out in the minds of the audience after seeing a Charlie Chaplin picture is that the film invariably closes with the Little Fellow walking away from the camera alone—his pathetically jaunty figure trudging toward the horizon—in the hope of better things to come.

So, the audience leaves the theatre with a laugh on its lips but a lump in its throat, for such frustration in the case of the Little Fellow doesn't seem fair. Life never metes out to him his fair proportion of the good things he deserves. For Charlie's famous character is the symbol of all that is pathetic, good and kind in the human race.

However, in "The Gold Rush,"

Bringing thrills, riotous comedy, wild jungle romance and beautiful Technicolor scenes, "Beyond the Blue Horizon," the new Dorothy Lamour jungle film, opened at the Bristol

Theatre last night.

It is a Lamour more exciting than she's ever been who appears in Paramount's "Beyond the Blue Horizon." Dotty captivated last night's audience. She's back in a sarong, boys and girls, and she looks great. Hearing Dotty sing her new ballad "A Full Moon and an Empty Heart" is itself worth the price of admission.

VOLUME

We are not interested in having a great mass of money.

Not in volume, because it creates a temptation to invest the money carelessly.

We would much prefer to always be short of money to invest than to have thousands upon thousands on hand with no prospect of placing it.

It is too easy to make poor loans when money accumulates in volume.

There is a temptation to "take a flyer" on some doubtful properties in order to put the money out.

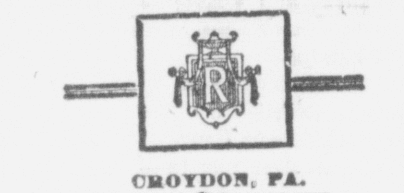

We have money to loan on safe risks.

We are sound, safe and prosperous and propose to do all possible to keep that way.

BOWLING POPULAR AMONG EMPLOYEES OF FLEETWINGS

Three Full-Size Leagues Will Be Playing This Season

START SEASON TUESDAY

Captains of Each of The Groups Have Been Chosen

Bowling has become so popular among the men and women at Fleetwings that three full-size leagues will be playing this season. The three leagues, each consisting of ten teams, are: Trainer, Seabird and Victory.

The second Fleetwings bowling season will begin at 7 p. m. on September 1. After that the Seabird League will bowl every Tuesday, the Victory League will bowl on Wednesday and the Trainer League will bowl on Thursday.

Captains of all teams have elected officers and they are: Walt Colbert, president of all three leagues; Dick McKinney, vice-president of Seabird; Hiram Hoffnagle, vice-president of Victory; Ed Tessmer, vice-president of Trainer; Don Stewart, treasurer, and S. Russo, M. Melnick and Charles Phillips, secretaries.

Earl Hewitt has been named chairman of the Rules Committee. Members of the committee include Ted Russo, Howard Stein, Joseph Dougherty, Fred Gmitter, George Sinkler and Mitchell Melnik.

Sixth Ward Wardens Begin Series of Meetings

One hundred and fifty air raid wardens and residents of the sixth sector assembled in the Bristol high school auditorium, Tuesday night, to set in motion the fall and winter group assemblies for exchange of ideas, coordination of warden's duties and general instructions. Bi-weekly meetings will be held in the high school auditorium every other Tuesday night, beginning September 22nd, and continuing throughout the winter months.

A series of ten lectures will be given by Deputy Commander John E. Healey. These lectures will cover air raid warden's activities in their entirety. Though not compulsory, it is imperative that all wardens attend each meeting in an effort to clarify thinking and action and solidify effort to make the air raid service worthy of the name. Notices will appear in the Bristol Courier preceding each meeting.

Tuesday night's meeting was conducted by Acting Senior Warden Percy G. Ford, Senior Warden Wesley Spencer, a patient in Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, was unable to be on hand. Invocation and benediction was given by Chaplain Senior Warden Knetler.

Following a business meeting a short talk was given by Senior Warden Ford upon the importance of co-operation among wardens. Criticism of a constructive nature is welcomed but non-reasoning criticism is destructive to any organization. It was brought out that errors are bound to occur.

"We cannot learn too much about the operations of our own phase of this very serious work. Every warden should feel so important about his job that no stone would be left unturned in making his duties as near 100% perfect as is humanly possible. Be serious in your Air Warden work. Carry out all orders emphatically. Be courteous; be kind; but, be strict in enforcement of regulations. An organization such as ours cannot be static. Its regulations, methods and procedure will—and must—change from time to time as new lessons are learned. Your sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, relatives and friends are standing on the threshold of supreme sacrifice. Why, then, should we hesitate for one minute in the performance of our duties? Every able-bodied man and woman in our sector and all other sectors should be side by side with us. Talk to your neighbor who is not signed up. Encourage him to be a warden, or join one of the other branches of Civilian Defense. This is no time for idle chatter or quasi action. We are at WAR. It is our WAR—so, let us get into our job wholeheartedly and with but a single thought in mind. This WAR must be won; this war will be won; and I, a citizen of these great United States, will work unflinchingly in some branch of Civilian Defense until we have won it," said a spokesman for the group.

Deputy Commander John E. Healey spoke at length upon the general set up of Air Raid service and outlined in detail what we could expect from his series of instructions. It was agreed by everyone present that his talk was informative as well as instructive and interesting. The Senior Wardens of the sixth sector have no doubts as to the results that will be accomplished by Deputy Healey's series of talks.

DOUBLE CHAMP By Jack Sords

SINGLE BY "VIC" ROCKHILL IN LAST INNING WINS THE GAME FOR EDGELY BY THE NARROW MARGIN OF ONE RUN

EDGELY, Aug. 31.—A single by "Vic" Rockhill in the last half of the ninth inning gave the Edgely A. C. a close 4-3 victory over the Voltz-Texaco team yesterday afternoon on the Edgely diamond. The triumph was the second in the series for Edgely giving it the lead, 2-1.

Rockhill's bingle scored Linck from third base after the latter had walked, stole second, and went to third on Dewannag's sacrifice. Rockhill was pinchhitting for Stan Felkner when he drove the ball on a line to left field for the base hit.

The bingle came after the fans had settled back into their seats to watch another extra inning affair for both hurlers Hal Shackleton and the veteran Turner Ashby were mowing down the batters in fast order.

Ashby, the winning moundsman, had one bad inning in which Voltz scored all its markers. Shackleton was scored upon in the third and fourth inning. Edgely evening it up in the fourth. From the fifth until the ninth, Voltz failed to get a runner on base while during this same stretch, Edgely had six runners stranded.

In the entire game, Edgely had ten runners left on base and strange as it may seem had a runner left in every inning and two in the sixth. Voltz had nine runners left on the sacks.

Ashby struck out six batters and walked the same number but he aided his team immensely with the stick. In the third, he started something with a double, the first hit off Shackleton, and in the following inning he singled to account for two more runs.

Shackleton also walked six batters and hit one. He was unsteady at times but in the pinches came through with his fast ball to retire the side. He had but one strikeout but held the winners to seven hits, two more than his mates received off Ashby.

Ashby was pulled out of a serious situation in the fourth inning when Al Doster pulled the fielding gem of the afternoon. With runners on second and third, Tazik hit what seemed to be a sure single to left field but Doster made a leaping catch of the pill after chasing it with his back to the infield.

The Voltz team scored its trio of runs in the third and should have scored more but for some "sloppy" baserunning. With one gone, Shackleton worked Ashby for a pass. Tazik also walked and when Ashby fumbled Berry's bunt, the bags were loaded. Kramers singled to center and Shackleton crossed Kramers was picked off first, and when Tazik made a dash for the plate, he was run-down and put out.

Cooper was given an intentional pass to load the bags. Mazzillo scored two when Doster erred on his grounder to short. Mazzillo was caught off first and when Cooper tried to make third he was put out. Vanzant to Leigh to Felkner.

Edgely got a run back in their half of the inning when Ashby and Dewannag hit two baggers. The score was deadlocked in the fourth. After Johnny Dick grounded out, Leigh drew a pass. Doster sacrificed Leigh to second. Vanzant hit to Tazik who erred, making both runners safe. Ashby scored Leigh and Doster with a hit to left. Linck grounded out.

Voltz passed up a scoring opportunity in the fifth when both Berry and Kramers received hits, were moved along on Cooper's sacrifice and stood there as Doster caught Mazzillo's fly and Gallagher walked to fill the bags. Schumacher batted for W. Dougherty and went out on a close play at first base.

The fourth game of the series will be played Wednesday night on St. Ann's field.

who are registered and desire to change their party affiliation must not re-register for this cause. Simply have a party enrollment change affidavit executed.

Women who have married since their original registration: Women who are registered under their maiden name and have married since their original registration must not re-register for this cause. Simply have the required marriage affidavit executed.

Guard against duplicate registrations: Persons whose original registrations remain intact on the county records, and have not relinquished residence in Bucks county since their original registration must not register again.

Persons moved into Pennsylvania from another state should register only if they have resided here one full year prior to the election. If, however, they formerly resided in Pennsylvania and moved out and again returned, then six months' residence prior to an election makes them eligible to register and vote. In all cases to register and vote, persons must have resided in their election district for a period of two months prior to an election.

Croydon Woman Held Up In Phila. By Former Neighbor

"One of the officers told me I couldn't park there," states Mrs. Hein. "Then he asked 'Are you in trouble?' and I replied 'This fellow is holding us up.'"

The two officers hurried to the Hein car and took Heiss in custody, he making no remonstrance.

At a police station in Frankford, when Mrs. Hein first saw the hold-up man minus his improvised mask, she recognized him as a neighbor when she had lived in Bristol several years ago. Heiss is reported to have said to Mrs. Hein "If I had known it was you I would never have held you up."

At Heiss' request Mrs. Hein attempted to get in touch with Heiss' wife through his parents. Heiss is the father of one child. The hearing, held early Saturday morning, took place at a police station in Frankford. Heiss was held without bail for court and is reported to be on parole from Lehigh County jail, where he served two years for robbery, according to Philadelphia police.

Thelma E. Goheen Is Bride of A Soldier

tured a train, and the sleeves were long. A crown of seed pearls held the lace-edged net veil. Her slippers were white satin, and she carried an arm bouquet of white asters.

Miss Mildred Goheen was attired in a floor-length gown of pink faille and net. The yoke was of net with trim at the front of tiny buttons and a small bow. An over-scarf of net featured points at the hip-line. Short sleeves were puffed. Her sweetheart bonnet of faille had cross straps at the back of the head. Her arm bouquet was of mixed flowers.

In St. James' parish house, 100 guests were received following the ceremony.

Leaving for a several days' stay in New York City the bride wore a jacket costume consisting of a brown velvet jacket with trim of biege, and wool biege skirt. Her felt hat and accessories were of brown, and she wore a corsage of yellow roses.

While Pvt. Perkins, who is with the medical corps at Mitchell Field, remains in the service, Mrs. Perkins will reside with her parents.

The groom's gift to his bride was a strand of pearls. The former Miss Goheen presented her attendant with pearls; and the groom gave the best man a pen.

said, and occupied an inhabited locality.

The Soviets, waging their own offensive west of Moscow, steadily improved their positions. They smashed their way across to the west bank of the Volga River west of Rzhev, 135 miles northwest of Moscow and were pushing the Germans back. They carried the fight to the Nazis also at Bryansk, 200 miles southwest of the Soviet capital and around Kaluga.

Chinese infantry forces stormed the Jap-held city of Nanchang in Kiangsi Province and pressed a new drive against the port of Canton in southeast China while United States bombers smashed at Jap bases over a wide area.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that planes of the United States Army Air Corps had struck new blows at the Japs by pounding installations at Hoangsupsi and Paoli in northern Indo-China, and blasting bases at Lasio and Myitkina in Burma. Heavy damage was done to airdromes, hangars, runways, warehouses, barracks and railways. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell said. The effort cost the United States only the ammunition and some gas and oil. Every plane returned safely to its base at the conclusion of each raid.

Joseph Haleski, a student at the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla, Mo., visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Cook, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Elmer Wright, of River Mawr, gave a birthday party last week in honor of their son, Larry. Guests included: Pamela Wilson, Mary Susan Wilson, Seaton Taylor, Diane Chesnut, Carol Rodenbaugh, Patricia Davis, Patsy Dilliplane, David John Wright, William Sharop, Lawrenceville, N. Short-Cut Cookery

Time is what we all need nowadays. There just aren't months enough, weeks or days or hours enough, to handle all the jobs we women must turn out today. What we need are some good short-cuts to daily living, so that we can do our civic duties and keep up our family lives as well.

Now, one place we can all save time is in the preparation of the family meals. Not decreasing the nutritional value of our meals. Indeed! For today, more than ever before, the government is urging us to keep up the high standards of our meals, even to increase them where possible. But we can reduce our cooking to quick and simple dishes that will cut kitchen time, and still make balanced meals.

Compact cookery is the answer to this need. The so-called one-dish dinner in which meat and vegetables and sauce are all slowly simmered in a casserole or skillet, then arranged together on a platter and served as one. One-dish dinners are not only time and effort savers, but they are easy on your pocketbook besides. For, because of the long slow cooking methods suited to this kind of dish, the thrifter cuts of meat like chuck and round and brisket may be used in them with great economy and skill. When tossed with chili sauce, beefsteak sauce, and Worcestershire are used as seasonings and sauces, the one-dish dinner may be made with real distinction in a minimum of time.
